Ben Hur Health & Rehabilitation

Joe believes that every day is a learning experience. He says he learns something either about himself or someone else every day he works at Ben Hur.

Joe was nominated by his co-workers because of his compassion that is evident in the way he treats residents and their families. He gives them his full attention and makes everyone feel special. If a resident requests something, he goes out of his way to provide it.

Currently a licensed practical nurse and evening supervisor, Joe has worked at Ben Hur for nine years. With help from ASC, he is also going to school to become a registered nurse. When he is not studying nursing, he enjoys learning about quantum physics.

Joe has one son who attends Wabash College and he helps care for his mother, a cancer survivor who lives next door to him. In his spare time, Joe enjoys editing videos and making 3D animations, some set to poetry he has written.

The Ben Hur team, residents and families feel a special connection with Joe. We are lucky to have him on our team.
