Highly Personal, Whole Person Wellness and Care

Each Memory Care resident has his or her unique life story, which continues to unfold. At American Senior Communities, we're out to fully leverage and support that story. Through a continuous, shared journey of discovery, we help each resident create new chapters of personal satisfaction and success each day by incorporating scientifically sound, association-endorsed best practices in ways that are innovative, proactive, inclusive and individualized.

We begin with a strategy founded on wellness rather than illness, developing and continuously adapting a personalized pathway for support along seven dimensions:

- Physical
- Social
- Intellectual
- Spiritual
- Emotional
- Occupational
- Environmental

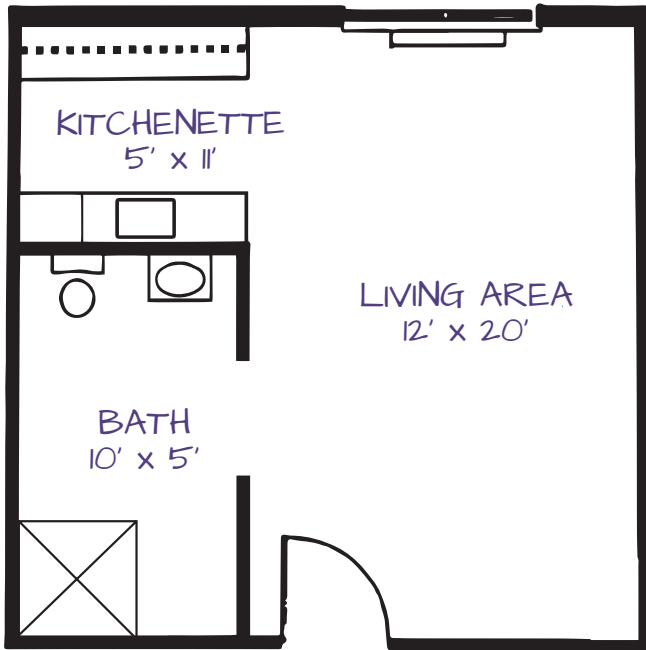

Moreover, Memory Care living at American Senior Communities is highly personal. Through an initial discovery process among care staff, the resident and his or her family, we learn unique and specific details about the resident's younger life, career, relationships, defining moments, hobbies, interests and values. This intimate knowledge helps us adapt activities and responses that can reduce anxiety, improve emotional well-being and enrich living.
